OUR BOOK TABLE.

We have received a neat little pamphlet of fourteen pages, entitled "The Feneral of Mirabeau, a poem by John W. Overall," with notes, printed by Strickland and Benjamin, Mobile --We have not had time to examine it carefully enough to pass an opinion up in its merits. The author was formerly a resident of this town and war educated here. He has written several other pretty little lyrics for the papers, which have been much quoted and admired.

The following periodicals for August have been laid on our table this week :

Harper's Magazine .- This is perhaps the most extensively circulated monthly publication lishers exhibit much taste and judgment in their selections from fereign periodicals. Most of the pictorial illustrations, with which each numher is embollished, are admirably executed and work. But this Magazine is too generally read and admired to require any encomium. Among the articles of interest in the present number are "Memoirs of the Holy Land," "Napoleon Bonas parte" continued, the "Bleak House" by Dickens, "My Navel" by Belwer, "Henry Clay-persona anecdates," &c., &c.

Sartain's Union Magazine .- This number is one of surpassing interest. The opening artiele, being a continuation of the life of Andrew Jackson, by J. T. Headley, with several elegant and appropriate Illustrations, has particularly struck our attention. But our interest is reading it was much diminished by the fact that the July fally the fugitive slave law. Go to the whigh tomber containing the commencement of the biography, has never come to hand. Sartain's is certainly a very valuable magazine, its months ly table of contents being filled with such a vagiety of well-written articles as to suit the differcut tastes of almost every class of readers.

Goden's Lady's Back .- The Book always comes to hand punctually. This is a double numher, containing 06 pages of reading matter, all and names to show that Pierce is with the South, upon deeply interesting subjects, especially to the a body and soul ?" ladles. We have watched them, with much interest and delights as they marched through our streets, bearing their arms and keeping time to the sound of the life and drum, with almost the military precision of veterans. They are a fine set of statwart, DETOCRATIC ELECTORAL TICKET, and vigor. "Young America" beams in their countenances and speaks in their actions. Go E. C. WILKINSON. A. M. JACKGON, ahead, boys!
